Workshop “Brexit and the Future of European Criminal Law“

Marburg | 17th January 2017

Technologie- & Tagungszentrum Marburg, Software Center 3, 35037 Marburg

Room Pascal I

After the Brexit-vote, the relationship between the European Union and the United Kingdom must be radically redefined. This holds also true for the broad field of (European) Criminal Law. What will be the legal and practical effects of the Brexit on EU-derived criminal laws? Will, can and should the United Kingdom continue to participate in the European system of police and judicial cooperation in criminal matters? How will the Brexit impact on European Institutions like Europol and Eurojust? This international workshop does not pretend to give definitive answer to these questions. It shall just bring some scholars and students from various countries together for a kind of brainstorming exercise, hoping for a fruitful dialectical exchange which might produce some ideas on a possible future after Brexit.
